The Paraguayan Economic Mission, headed by Sub-Secretary of Foreign Relations Osvaldo Chaves, will continue negotiations in London for a trade agreement between Paraguay and Great Britain. According to source, the Paraguayan government had initiated negotiations with the British Legation in Asuncion for a trade agreement similar to that recently signed by Argentina and Great Britain. Under the agreement, Great Britain would send petroleum products and various types of merchandise in exchange for canned meat and similar products from Paraguay. The preliminary details have already been agreed upon, and source believes that Chaves will probably complete the negotiations and may sign the agreement in London.
